

A Tiny Push

If you have ever called the Wisconsin Lions Foundation, chances are it was Meghan who answered the phone. On June 5th Meghan married Kevin Postelnik in Stevens Point. Though a couple getting married is an important event, you may wonder why an article regarding the wedding would appear in the Wisconsin Lion.

Helen Keller said, "The world is moved along, not only by the mighty shoves of its heroes, but also by the aggregate of the tiny pushes of each honest worker." Meghan and Kevin made it a point at their wedding reception to give a few tiny pushes to their favorite charities, the Lions Pride Endowment Fund and the Alzheimer's Association.

"Someone suggested we do a "Dollar Dance" at our reception, it sounded like fun," Meghan said, "however Kevin and I really did not want to ask our guests to give us more money, after all, people already give a gift at a wedding, so we decided to have the dance and give the money to our favorite charities."

It seems we can always find money for the things we really want; well in this case Meghan and Kevin found a way to give to the things they really care about. What a great way to start their life together. Next time you call the WLF Office tell Meghan thanks for the push.
